

The Founders Team

Darja Gutnick (middle) is the co-founder and CEO of the team management platform Bunch. After finishing her psychology studies, she spent three years researching organizational behaviour as a full-time researcher at the University of Groningen and founded her first company in Buenos Aires, Argentina. She also consulted for BMW and other corporate clients on HR and organizational development and has worked with Rocket Internet, N26, and other startups on developing high-performance teams. In addition to managing Bunch, she mentors young startups at GTEC.

Anthony A. Reo (left) is co-founder at Bunch and runs the product team. Bunch is the team management platform for managing culture with data. Having studied conflict resolution and moved into product management right after, Anthony is passionate about user-centric and simplicity-driven design, data-driven approach to prioritization and of course customer value. In addition to growing the product and the team at Bunch Anthony builds a database of resources for product managers at prodopolis.com

Charles Ahmadzadeh (right) is co-founder at Bunch.ai and runs their engineering team. Bunch is the team management platform for managing culture with data. Full stack software generalist with a knack for data, Charles is passionate about Software Craftmanship, reactive architectures and Audio Synthesis. In addition to growing the engineers team at Bunch Charles mentors developers at askadev.org.